to other trails and viewpoints in the Upper Lands. This area can be reached only by trail. The trail network is open to the public and connects 100 cabins located along Hollyburn Ridge, most accessed by trail.

The West Vancouver portion of the trail is 22.3 km (13.8 mi.), north of the upper levels highway at Nelson Canyon. The trail travels through old-growth trees, follows Whyte Creek and ends at Whyte Lake. The trail provides a variety of views, making it a great trail for families.

Hiking the trail from Cleveland Dam Park at 25th Street to John Lawson Park at the foot of 16th Street. McGee Park and the Glencoe cross-country ski area, including the cross-country ski area, is mountainous. The trail provides a variety of views, making it a great trail for families.

When planning a trip, it’s important to be aware of the level of accessibility. Places with this symbol have varying levels of accessibility.

Lighthouse Park is a remnant old-growth forest on a rugged seashore in west Vancouver Park. Located next to the Gleneagles Community Centre at 6262 Marine Drive, the park is wheelchair-accessible. Benches and rest areas are also available.

Bancroft-Powell Trail: This area has been designated as Bancroft-Powell Park. The trail connects the park to the Glencoe cross-country ski area, including the cross-country ski area, is mountainous. The trail provides a variety of views, making it a great trail for families.

This scenic trail stretches from Deep Cove in North Vancouver to the north, the community of Horseshoe Bay to the south and the towering Coast Mountains and Howe Sound. This park makes an excellent location for activities such as swimming, bird watching, and picnicking.

Glenmore Park: This park is home to Vancouver Coastal Health Authority, Complement Health, and the Vancouver General Hospital. It’s a great place to meet friends and have fun in a supportive environment.

The West Vancouver Memorial Library is a dynamic, free and accessible library. It’s always available online. Browse the site to see all that we offer, including events, workshops and programs which reflect the cultural diversity of the community.

While this community centre is located conveniently for residents of West Vancouver, it’s also a great place to meet friends and have fun in a supportive environment. It’s always available online. Browse the site to see all that we offer, including events, workshops and programs which reflect the cultural diversity of the community.

The top two invasive plant species in the District are knotweed and Alpine Hawkweed. The knotweed can cause serious permanent health problems. Please note that the level of accessibility varies. Places with this symbol have varying levels of accessibility.

Hogweed can cause serious permanent health problems.

A view of Whyte Lake through the wetlands.